That is the invitation received by wireless by Samuel Blair of the Popular theater, all the way from New York City, asking the girls of Honolulu to attend a performance of "Hearts Adrift" at the Popular theater, free of charge, and become better acquainted with "America's Little Sweetheart." The message was received by Mr. Blair last Saturday afternoon and being indefinite as to date he decided that today was the anniversary of the birth of the bright star of the Famous Players Film Co., and as a consequence the Popular theater doors are open today to the girls of this city—mere man being barred—and, in order that none shall be overlooked and to show his own appreciation of the merit of Miss Pickford, Mr. Blair has decided to give another free matinee tomorrow, making two days upon which the great Pickford success, "Hearts Adrift," will be shown free to the girls of this city. Incidentally, Mr. Blair announces that there will be no charges for the Famous Players to pay, as he is so pleased with the big successes scored by the Pickford offerings in Honolulu that he proposes to make the charming little actress a birthday present of the matinees.

Commencing with next Wednesday the announcement is made that a daily matinee will be in order at the Popular theater and that "The Pride of Jennico," one of James K. Hackett's greatest successes, will be shown for three days only, two performances daily. With the matinee of next Saturday another stupendous offering will be on the bill—"Victory," one of the greatest naval pictures ever shown, and which was made with the permission of the United States government, and introduces a number of naval celebrities.

Special reduced prices will be made at the daily matinees. "Hearts Adrift" will be shown again tonight and tomorrow night and the advance sale of seats for the final nights is way above the average.

It holds that the question of jurisdiction of the district or circuit court is not the real issue, but that the true point involved is whether sufficient notice was given the defendant, for the principal defendant being non-resident, jurisdiction over him cannot be obtained and is not necessary.
